National Institutes of Health
Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

Tenure Track Investigators, Epidemiology Branch

The Division of Epidemiology, Statistics and Prevention Research (DESPR) of the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD), National Institutes of Health (NIH), invites applications for the positions of Tenure Track Investigator in the Epidemiology Branch. The Branch conducts cutting-edge reproductive, perinatal and pediatric epidemiologic research focusing on the genetic and environmental determinants of human reproduction, pregnancy and child health, along with innovative methodological research. Candidates will be evaluated with regard to their ability to develop a creative and productive program of independent and collaborative epidemiologic research in reproductive, perinatal or obstetric epidemiology.

Eligible candidates must have an MD, PhD, or other earned doctoral degree with experience and training in epidemiology or a closely related field. A track record of publications in refereed journals is also required.

Full Federal benefits including salary, leave, health and life insurance, long-term care insurance, retirement, and savings plan (401k equivalent) will be provided.

Questions about the position should be directed by telephone or email to Dr. Enrique Schisterman, Chief & Senior Investigator, Epidemiology Branch, at 301-496-5582; schistee@mail.nih.gov. Interested applicants should email a cover letter describing research interests and professional accomplishments, curriculum vitae, and the names and contact information for three references to:
